

Miho

About the artist

Born in 1971 in the city of Meiningen, Germany, Miho grew up in Eastern Germany under his given name: Michael Hopf. His home region, famous for performing arts and the country's purest natural reserves, influenced him strongly in his current perception of the world, as they were soon contrasted by the Western lifestyle that came with the opening of the border during his early 20's. Between those two contrary ways of living, Michael found his passion in his art gallery, in which he tries to unite a little piece of both worlds.

In 2015 Michael decided that his gallery alone does not fulfill his passion for arts as he desired, and thus started to create his own pieces under the name of "miho". Due to his adolescence during a time full of changes, many of his artworks focus on personalities that had and often still have a grave impact on his generation - from musicians, over actors, onto philosophers and sportsmen - and from time to time, majestic creatures of nature.

miho's paintings often seem to represent a specific mood of the motive, which is strongly expressed via mimics, gestures, the choice in colors and their unique combination. A well selected range of acryl colors allows Michael to give his paintings a new dimension in the perception of their audience, in which they can find a better understanding for the story of the shown person, object or animal.

His paintings are accompanied by an certificate of authenticity, signed by the artist, and additionally may be available in the form of up to ten digital prints on canvas.
